EIGHTH REPORT

OF THE

COMMITTEE

OF THE

FEMALE PENITENTIARY,

19TH APRIL, 1819.

THE LIVERPOOL FEMALE PENITENTIARY being upon so limited a scale as to contain only twenty Females, and having been now established eight years, it cannot be expected that the present Annual Report should exhibit any thing materially different from the preceding one of last year. Yet the Committee think it right, in duty to the public and to themselves, not merely to give a bare statement of the accounts, and of the numbers in the house, but to subjoin a few observations on the past and present circumstances of the Institution.

On a comparison of the receipts of the past year with those of the preceding one, it appears there has been a small diminution of the subscriptions, and which would have had a serious effect upon the funds of the Charity, had it not been counterbalanced by an increase in the amount received for work done, by donations, and by a handsome legacy from a deceased friend. It is, however, a gratifying consideration, that the expenditure (exclusive of £46 paid for paving) has not in a greater degree exceeded that of the former year, since the average number of residents this year has been larger. That the increased expense has not been more, the Committee beg leave to state, is owing to the strict attention which is paid by the Matron to prudence and economy, under the active superintendence of the Ladies' Committee; and has removed the anxiety which they felt on the departure of the former much esteemed and judicious Matron, lest her place should not be suitably filled up by her successor. Yet the Committee have still to repeat their regret, that the annual subscriptions are below the expenditure, and, unless these are increased, or some unexpected benefactions or legacies are bestowed, some considerable diminution of the present small number of females must take place, or even the Institution itself be altogether abandoned.

And will the inhabitants of Liverpool, a place so justly celebrated for its numerous public Charities, permit so useful, so interesting an establishment as this refuge for the most destitute and pitiable of our fellow-creatures to languish, or perhaps fall into decay? Will they turn a deaf ear to the earnest entreaties of the hopeless, forsaken female, who says, with a heart torn with anguish, and a countenance bathed in tears, "What shall I do? I have lost my innocence, my character, my friends, and, if your charitable aid is denied, there is nothing before me but the dreadful necessity of continuing in sin, and of perishing." Can they contemplate this poor, friendless, and degraded fellow-mortal, brought by seduction, ignorance, and vice, to the verge of death and moral destruction, and refuse even a small pecuniary contribution towards restoring her to virtue, to peace, and to her God? Forbid it, heaven! Forbid it, every principle of our most holy religion! and every powerful sympathy of the human heart! Surely the spirit of the religion of Christ, our Lord and Master, will not plead in vain to whatever denomination of its votaries we address ourselves. We are all of one great family, and a God of love and benevolence is our common Father. "He it is who maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust." "He is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted of him." Let us, then, once more address ourselves to those who have hitherto declined to unite with us in relieving the deplorable objects of this Charity; and especially to the Clergy and Members of the Established Church we would again say, "Till your long-projected scheme of a Penitentiary is really carried into effect, do not withhold from ours those contributions which will enable us to go on with the same benevolent work you yourselves contemplated. Why refuse, in the meanwhile, to join with us in removing those deplorable calamities, in lessening those moral evils, and in implanting those religious principles, feelings, and habits, which every charitable and humane heart must rejoice to see accomplished? And we now add, consider also how necessary it is ' to do the work of him that sent you whilst it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work."

That the utility of this Institution has occasionally been questioned, we are well aware. But, we hesitate not to say, the remark has originated in want of due inquiry into the plan, the management, and the effects of this Charity. And we would ask such persons whether they have considered the variety of accidental, temporary, and almost involuntary eases of error which occur; and whether the proper separation of such transgressors from those who are long practised in vice is not almost certain to lead to reformation; nay, whether even of those who are more abandoned we have reason entirely to despair.

A still more satisfactory answer may, however, be given by a reference to the internal affairs of the Establishment; by which it appears, that, from the zeal, attention, and judicious conduct of those Ladies and Ministers of religion who visit the penitents, the happiest effects are produced upon some, and order and decorum in the conduct of almost all; that fewer instances of misconduct amongst them have occurred during the last year than in any former one; that favourable accounts continue to be received from most of those who have been put to service, or restored to their friends; and that the most gratifying testimonials to the religious and moral improvement of many of these unfortunate outcasts are recorded in the books by the Visitors. To these desirable ends the state of the sick penitent, mentioned in the last year's Report, and also that of the interesting young female who lately died in the Institution, have been instrumental; for the contemplation of the bodily and mental sufferings consequent on vice, contrasted with a mind restored to a state of humility, gratitude, and pious resignation, cannot fail to produce beneficial reflections, and to awaken, in those who are here removed out of the way of temptation, powerful motives to virtue and holiness. But it is not from their being separated from vicious companions, and contemplating religious conduct in others, that the Committee rely as the sole means of reclaiming the objects of their solicitude. Idleness and ignorance must be supplanted; and, in this view of the subject, the Committee notice, with additional pleasure, the increased quantity of work done during the last year; and also the progress which has been made by some of the penitents in learning to read. Thus are they qualifying themselves to become useful members of that society which they had formerly disgraced and injured; and thus are they enabling themselves to consult the oracles of Divine Truth, which are so admirably calculated to induce them to forsake the error of their ways; "to lead them as new-born babes to imbibe the sincere milk of the word that they may grow thereby;" and "to approve things that are excellent, being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ to the glory and praise of God."

Animated by these delightful considerations, the Committee now present this report to their friends and the public, at the same time remembering, that, "though Paul planted and Apollos watered, it was God who gave the increase."

N.B. Subscriptions will be received by Mr. John Eason, Vice-President; Mr. John Leigh, Queen's Dock, Treasurer; Messrs. King and Son, Temple-court; Mr. J. R. Freme; Mr. Archibald Keightley; and Messrs. R. Jones and Son, Castle-street; Mr. Nicholas Hurry and Mr. Ottiwell Wood.
